M: Hello. International Friends Club. Can I help you?

W: Oh, hello. I read about your club in the paper today and I thought I'd phone to find out a bit more.

M: Yes, certainly. Well, we are a sort of social club for people from different countries. It's quite a new club—we have about 50 members at the moment, but we are growing all the time.

W: That sounds interesting. I'm British actually, and I came to Washington about three months ago. I'm looking for ways to meet people. Er, what kinds of events do you organize?

M: Well, we have social get-togethers, and sports events, and we also have language evenings.

W: Could you tell me something about the language evenings?

M: Yes. Every day except Thursday we have a language evening. People can come and practice their languages—you know, over a drink or something. We have different languages on different evenings. Monday—Spanish; Tuesday—Italian; Wednesday—German; and Friday—French. On Thursday we usually have a meal in a restaurant for anyone who wants to come.

W: Well, that sounds great. I really need to practice my French.

M: OK. Well, if you can just give me your name and address, I'll send you the form and some more information. If you join now you can have the first month free.

W: Were you a good student?

M: No, not really. I used to talk a lot. In fact, I had to sit alone in class.

W: What did your mother think? Did she know you were a troublemaker?

M: Oh, yes. I used to play jokes on her, too. For example, when I was little, my mother and I used to go shopping at a supermarket near our home. She used to walk and I used to take my bike. He doesn't mind the hard work, but he finds studying medicine is very boring. Moreover, he doesn't like hospitals, either. Tom is still thinking of becoming an artist, but he isn't sure whether he can do it. He doesn't know how he will support himself if his parents don't help him. He wishes he didn't have to worry about money. He wishes he could please himself and make his parents happy, too. So he wants to get the full understanding from his parents.

第一节

参考范文:

Dear Alice,

I am worried to know that you should be so addicted to TikTok these days. Playing with your smartphone too much is bad for your health. Besides, if you spend so much time in looking through TikTok, I'm afraid you will fall behind your classmates sooner or later.

In my opinion, you should find something interesting to do if you want to relax. For example, take a walk on the playground with your friends. Alternatively, you can chat with your classmates, which will cheer you up.

I know you have a strong will and you are clever. I believe you can get rid of this bad habit quite soon.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节

参考范文:

Luckily, the police department and local community were able to give the twins a party they never expected. The police station bought balloons for them and helped to decorate the hotel room with balloons and flowers. Learning that the twins' favorite food was Pizza, a local bakery donated a cake and a pizza to them. They said it was the most delicious food they had ever eaten. Some children from local community also came to the hotel to celebrate the twins' ninth birthday and sang the happy birthday song for them.

The news about this family in need quickly spread across the town. It even caught the attention of the city leaders, who asked for help on the local news station to get this family a more long-term solution and a place they could call home. Plenty of viewers were inspired by the police officer and decided to help this family. The local community was definitely generous, and more than $2,500 in total was raised in a short time. Erin couldn't thank the local community more and promised that all of the money would be used to get them into a warm home. It's beautiful to see people act with such kindness.
