第一节

Dear Brown,

Having heard volunteers are being recruited to take care of the British students to visit our school this winter, I can hardly wait to write to you to apply to be a volunteer. I think I am the very person you are looking for.

Firstly, I have a good command of the English language, which means I will be able to communicate with the guests freely, thus attending to their needs completely. What's more, being expert at handling people is another plus. Finally, I used to work as a volunteer in our school. Therefore, I quite understand what my responsibility includes.

Thanks for your consideration. Looking forward to your reply.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节

Then suddenly, I thought of Lucas. Could he pay the extra 1 dollar to get his class picture? I ran to my friends the moment the bell rang, announcing the class was over. We discussed that problem for a long time and finally drew the conclusion that very likely he wouldn't get the picture. Then we rushed to the teacher's office for confirmation. We were right. We withdrew from the office, upset and silent. Then I remembered mom's package of clothes. "Maybe we can buy one for him." I proposed. We counted our changes, sent it to our teacher and then waited for the big day excitedly.

Lucas was frozen in shock when the teacher handed him that class picture. He stood up, lowered his head, and whispered nervously, "No, I didn't..." The teacher smiled, "But your best friends did pay for your class picture." Lucas raised his head in disbelief and looked around the class. Everyone smiled and then applauded, even if some students didn't know what happened. At the moment, a surge of pride swept through me. I felt I knew how to see through my heart, but not just see through my eyes.

(Text 1)

W: Excuse me, sir. I was told to take a right turn here to get to the National Gallery, but...

M: No, not here. Go straight on. Turn right at the traffic light there. Go past the bookshop. It's the building next to the bookshop opposite the coffee shop.

(Text 2)

M: Let's ask for the bill. We're late for work.

W: But there is still much roast beef left.

M: I'm just too full to eat any more. Get a to-go box to take it home?

W: Good idea.

(Text 3)

W: Excuse me, could you take care of my luggage? I'd like to get a snack lunch for my kid.

M: I'd love to but it is announced that my plane is now boarding at Gate 37.

(Text 4)

W: So, you went to see the film? Some people say it's boring and dull.

M: Maybe that's because the story is a little hard to follow.

W: So, what did you make of it?

M: I thought the actors did a very good job.

(Text 5)

W: I hope it stay warm. Do you think it will be good beach weather tomorrow?

M: Maybe. But you know that California weather is unpredictable. One minute it's hot, and then the next minute it's cold, spoiling your plan easily.

W: You're right.

(Text 6)

M: Good morning, madam. Could you sign me up for a psychology class now?

W: There are two psychology classes that are still open. The first class is a Tuesday and Thursday class from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

M: What a pity! I'm not available on those afternoons. What about the other class?

W: It's on Monday and Wednesday from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m.

M: Are you sure there are no more open classes?

W: I'm sure.

M: In this case, I'll choose the latter one.

W: Okay. Your class will begin next week.

(Text 7)

W: I'm Lydia Smith in apartment 23. Is that the apartment manager speaking?

M: Yes. Speaking please.

W: As usual, I went out to get some groceries this morning, but when I came back, I found broken glass lying about in my living room. Besides, there was a baseball near it. I guess it was from some kids in this building.

M: OK. I'll call the window repairman, but it'll probably take a couple of days.

W: I could get fast service if I call a friend of mine. He happens to work in a repair shop.

M: OK.

W: But what about the bill?

M: Since the kids broke it, your friend can bill me.

(Text 8)

M: Linda, could I check out this book?

W: I remember you haven't had a library card, have you?

M: No, I haven't. How can I get a library card?

W: If you have your Identity Card with you, we can apply for one right now.

M: Yes, here it is.

W: By the way, there are some rules you'll have to bear in mind. First, books can only be kept for a week. But you can renew them. This is very important, because if you don't return a book on time, you will have to pay a fine. Five cents per day for each book. Now, let's go to the coffee shop on the second floor. We'll have to get a copy of your ID card first.

M: It's really a privilege to be in the same school with you.

(Text 9)

W: Doctor Rita's office.

M: This is Peter Jones. I'd like to make an appointment for a checkup, please. I've just moved in Los Angeles for a job switch and my new company needs a thorough medical examination.

M: Welcome, Mr. Jones. Companies usually want a fairly complete examination. So that means you'll have to come in the morning and don't eat or drink anything after midnight the night before. When would you like to come in?

M: Anytime this week. I don't have to go into the office until next Monday.

W: Will 9.00 a.m. Thursday be convenient?

M: No problem. Oh, I forgot. We'll have a meeting with my children's new headmaster that morning. That's at 11.

W: What school is that?

M: Beverly Hills High School.

W: Oh, that's no problem. The whole examination will take about an hour, maybe a bit more and the school is only two blocks from here. A 3-minute walk. So, you will have plenty of time.

M: That's good. So, 9.00 a.m. Thursday.

W: How would you like to get the report? We can either telephone to tell you or e-mail you or you can visit our app and download it.

M: Send it to pjones12@hotmail.com.

IELTS is an English language test that is widely accepted by over 3000 universities worldwide. IELTS registration can be done by selecting a suitable test center and date. The total duration of the test is 2 hours and 45 minutes. Candidates can take the test up to four times a month. The IELTS score is usually available within 2-5 days after the test date.

The IELTS test evaluates an individual's mastery in English and the score is widely recognized by over 11,000 employers, universities, and government authorities globally. So those who want to get jobs in international companies or study abroad or live permanently in English-speaking countries usually choose to take the exam.

IELTS is available in two ways: IELTS Academic and IELTS General: IELTS Academic and IELTS General Training, each serving a specific purpose. While the Listening and Speaking sections of both tests are identical, the Reading and Writing sections differ. The IELTS Academic test is intended for individuals seeking higher education or professional certification in an English-speaking country. On the other hand, the IELTS General Training test is primarily taken by people who wish to move to or work in English-speaking countries, with a focus on the skills required to succeed in the workplace.
